

Conditions for prospective students from abroad

Studying Catholic theology at Fulda Faculty of Theology

The following degrees and qualifications in Catholic theology are awarded by Fulda Faculty of Theology: master's degree, licentiate, doctorate, habilitation.

Matriculation:

In order to enrol for the master's degree in Catholic theology at our faculty, the following documents are required:

- 1.) a German higher-education entrance qualification (i.e. general qualification for university entrance, Abitur or an equivalent qualification);*
- 2.) non-German-speaking prospective students should provide a certificate of proficiency in German enabling them to study at a German-language university (e.g. DSH 3);
- 3.) a certificate of good conduct issued by the Church.

* In order to ascertain whether a university entrance qualification can be accepted as equivalent to a German school leaving certificate, we require the following documents:

- a CV in German, English or French with an exact list of all qualifications and certificates;
- certified copies of all qualifications and certificates.

 If a prospective student lacks sufficient knowledge of German, proficiency in the language can be acquired through German classes in Fulda over the course of one to two semesters, depending on the student's prior knowledge of German. It is possible to attend classes and sit the DSH examination at Fulda University of Applied Sciences. Further details are available at www.hs-fulda.de/ziks.

Further information is also available on the website of Fulda Faculty of Theology: www.thf-fulda.de.

Prospective doctoral students or those interested in obtaining a habilitation should contact studienberatung@thf-fulda.de.
